Item 5. Other Events.

On December 20, 2002, the Company announced an agreement with the U.S. Department of Justice to settle charges related to the 1996 sale of four deskside computers to a Russian government laboratory. To settle these charges, the Company has agreed to plead guilty to two violations of export licensing regulations and pay a fine of $500,000 for each violation.

To initiate the settlement process, the U.S. Department of Justice filed a criminal information on December 20, 2002 in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California. The settlement agreement with the U.S. Department of Justice is expected to be filed and approved at a court hearing on January 6, 2003.

The Company has also agreed to settle certain related administrative claims with the U.S. Department of Commerce and to pay penalties of approximately $182,000. The settlement provides for a suspended denial order relating to Russia under which the U.S. Department of Commerce will review certain shipments by the Company to Russia for a period of three years. The administrative fine also relates to administrative and paperwork violations in connection with sales to several other countries, which were identified and disclosed by the Company to the U.S. Department of Commerce as a result of internal compliance reviews.

The settlements, when final, will conclude the U.S. Departments of Justice and Commerce investigations. The Company has initiated communication with the principal U.S. government customer agency that initially reviewed these matters in 1997. The Company will work closely with its key customers to share the facts of this case and to explain the enhanced export compliance program the Company has put in place. The settlement payments will not have a material financial impact on the Company. Although there can be no assurance that the settlement will not have an adverse effect on the Company's U.S. government business, the Company does not believe the settlement should have a significant impact on revenues or important customer relationships.
