Edgar Filing: PROTECTIVE LIFE CORP - Form DEFA14A

On June 9, 2014, The Dai-ichi Life Insurance Company, Limited (Dai-ichi) gave the following presentation to certain Protective Life Corporation (Protective) executive officers:

Edgar Filing: PROTECTIVE LIFE CORP - Form DEFA14A

On June 9, 2014, Dai-ichi presented a video to certain Protective executive officers. The transcript is as follows:

At Dai-ichi Life, we all work tirelessly to deliver peace of mind. For over a century, we have been passing on peace of mind to our customers, our society and our world. Living the philosophy of By your side, for life.

Today, we have group companies all over the world, all delivering peace of mind to our customers of various nationalities. However, to have come this far, we needed a core philosophy to guide us. Let's take a look at how we started and how this compass has served us.

Dai-ichi Life was established in 1902 with about 10 employees. Dai-ichi means first, and the name was chosen because our founding philosophy was to put our customer first, always. Dai-ichi Life was established to support people financially and offer peace of mind. By the early 1920s, we had grown to become the fifth largest life insurance company in Japan. But this growth was not without setbacks.

September 1, 1923 the first shock hit at 11:58 a.m., sending a burst of tectonic energy across Japan. The Great Kanto Earthquake decimated Tokyo, the port city of Yokohama and several surrounding prefectors, leaving the country in shock. One of the only buildings left standing in central Tokyo was the Dai-ichi Life headquarters, and we unhesitatingly volunteered the building to serve as shelter for the many who had lost their homes. After the quake, the Japanese government had authorized insurance companies to defer payments to reduce the strain on the industry. But, in spite of this and in spite of an increasingly uncertain future, Dai-ichi Life promptly paid all claims a true characteristic of a company that puts its customers first.

These actions boosted customer confidence and advanced Dai-ichi Life to eventually become the second largest life insurance company in Japan.

Poor working conditions and a dense living environment early in the 20th century contributed to a tuberculosis epidemic of ghastly proportions. By 1938, tuberculosis was the leading cause of death in Japan. Dai-ichi Life recognized this problem and devoted itself to fighting this terrible outbreak, building facilities that offered free tuberculosis exams, as well as treatment.

Post-war Japan offered many more challenges for a rapidly changing country. The economy grew, lifestyles transformed and evolved. Dai-ichi Life was there, with diverse and innovative services to meet these new and ever-changing needs. We also set on a course investing our assets in other companies to help support Japan's industry and infrastructure for economic growth. When economies grow, so do health and wealth. In many ways, we at Dai-ichi Life have contributed to modern Japan, one of the world's largest economies with one of the world's highest life expectancy rates.

By the 1980s and through the end of the century, we met new needs with the latest technology, designing financial life plans tailor-made to match the individual lifestyles of our customers.

In 2007, we expanded into the global market. With every new market, we work within communities to adapt to local cultures while building on the values of our foundation.

March 11, 2011: The earth unleashed a shattering force in the form of a 9.0 earthquake off the east coast of Japan. It rocked Japan's Tohoku region and triggered a devastating tsunami that tore families and loved ones apart. Many lives were lost, and many were left homeless. We got to work immediately to connect with our customers and pay out on policies. While there's no equal compensation for some losses, Dai-ichi Life was able to bring some peace to an unforgiving chaos. In the same way we responded to the Great Kanto Earthquake, we were able to once again demonstrate our fundamental "Customer First" philosophy to a new customer almost 100 years later.

Now Dai-ichi Life delivers peace of mind to close to 10 million families in Japan, as well as many around the world.

Our "Customer First" philosophy has driven our company since the beginning, and has evolved to "By your side, for life."

We've set a course for success using three pillars: Values, Vision and Mission.

Values:

Our values are based on the Dai-ichi Life social responsibility charter. To raise Dai-ichi Life values, we have set action principles for all our employees.

(Shown on screen only):

- Customer satisfaction
- Communication
- Compliance
- Respect to human rights
- Diversity
- Environmental protection
- Social contribution
- Promoting health
- Creating sustainable corporate value

Vision:

- To be first in quality
- To be first in productivity
- To be first in vital and energetic employees
- To be first in growth potential

Our group vision is Thinking People First. We aim to become a leading insurance group in Asia Pacific.

Mission:

We contribute to local communities by passing on peace of mind through providing life insurance and related services. As part of the Dai-ichi Life group, all our companies will continue to stand by the side of our customers and their loved ones for life.
