Legal Proceedings Update

On 4 September 2014, the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Louisiana found BP Exploration & Production Inc. (“BPXP”) grossly negligent with respect to the Gulf of Mexico oil spill and that BPXP’s activities at the Macondo well amounted to willful misconduct. BPXP strongly disagrees with the decision and will immediately appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. BPXP believes that the finding that it was grossly negligent and that its activities at the Macondo well amounted to willful misconduct is not supported by the evidence at trial. The law is clear that proving gross negligence is a very high bar that was not met in this case. BPXP believes that an impartial view of the record does not support the erroneous conclusion reached by the District Court.

The Court has not yet ruled on the number of barrels spilled and no penalty has yet been determined. The District Court will hold additional proceedings, which are currently scheduled to begin in January 2015, to consider the application of statutory penalty factors in assessing a per-barrel Clean Water Act penalty. The Clean Water Act requires the District Court to consider a number of factors in determining an appropriate penalty. The statutory maximum penalty is $1,100 per barrel where the court finds simple negligence and $4,300 per barrel where the court finds gross negligence or willful misconduct. During the penalty proceedings, BPXP will seek to show that its conduct merits a penalty that is less than the applicable maximum after application of the statutory factors.

Credit Ratings Update

Following the 4 September 2014 ruling by the District Court described above, on 8 September 2014, Moody’s Investors Service Ltd affirmed the A2 long-term debt rating of BP p.l.c and BP Capital Markets, but changed the outlook to negative and on 9 September 2014, Standard & Poor’s Ratings Services affirmed the A long-term and A-1 short-term credit ratings, but revised the outlook of BP p.l.c to stable from positive.
