Glencairn suspends mining at Limon due to illegal blockade

Glencairn Gold Corporation reports that operations at its Limon Mine in Nicaragua have been temporarily suspended due to another illegal blockade on the road between the mine and the mill site.

The blockade has been set up by a group of an estimated 17 current and former employees who are demanding that the company rehire a number of former employees who were terminated in December, 2005. The termination of these employees has been upheld by the Nicaraguan government and their severance has been paid.

Those blocking the road are members of the same union that blockaded the road in November, 2005. This group was among the signatories of an unconditional agreement in November that future disputes be resolved according to the resolution mechanisms in the collective agreement between the Company and its unions. Glencairn has appealed to various branches of the government of Nicaragua for help in finding a resolution to this situation.

Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements: This press release contains forward-looking statements, within the meaning of the United States Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 and applicable Canadian securities legislation. Forward-looking statements include, but are not limited to, statements with respect to the future financial or operating performance of the Company, its subsidiaries and its projects, the future price of gold, the estimation of mineral reserves and resources, the realization of mineral reserve estimates, the timing and amount of estimated future production, costs of production, capital, operating and exploration expenditures, costs and timing of the development of new deposits, costs and timing of future exploration, requirements for additional capital, government regulation of mining operations, environmental risks, reclamation expenses, title disputes or claims, limitations of insurance coverage and the timing and possible outcome of pending litigation and regulatory matters. Generally, these forward-looking statements can be identified by the use of forward-looking terminology such as plans, expects or does not expect, is expected, budget, scheduled, estimates, forecasts, intends, anticipates, anticipate, or believes, or variations of such words and phrases or state that certain actions, events or results may, could, would, might or will be taken, or achieved. Forward-looking statements are subject to known and unknown risks, uncertainties and other factors that may cause the actual results, level of activity, performance or achievements of the Company to be materially different from those expressed or implied by such forward-looking statements, including but not limited to: general business, economic, competitive, political and social uncertainties; the actual results of current exploration activities; actual results of reclamation activities; conclusions of economic evaluations; changes in project parameters as plans continue to be refined; future prices of gold; possible variations of ore grade or recovery rates; failure of plant, equipment or processes to operate as anticipated; accidents, labour disputes and other risks of the mining industry; political instability, insurrection or war; delays in obtaining governmental approvals or financing or in the completion of development or construction activities, as well as those factors discussed in the section entitled General Development of the Business Risks of the Business in the Company's Form 40-F on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, D.C. and the Company's annual information form for the year ended December 31, 2004 on file with the securities regulatory authorities in Canada. Although the Company has attempted to identify important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those contained in forward-looking statements, there may be other factors that cause results not to be as anticipated, estimated or intended. There can be no assurance that such statements will prove to be accurate, as actual results and future events could differ materially from those anticipated in such statements. Accordingly, readers should not place undue reliance on forward-looking statements. The Company does not undertake to update any forward-looking statements that are incorporated by reference herein, except in accordance with applicable securities laws.
