The following is the transcript of the two-minute video presentation made by Edward E. Whiteacre Jr., Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of SBC Communications Inc.:

This is Ed Whitacre and I'm very pleased to talk with you about why this combination of our companies is so exciting. This is a historic moment for our industry, our customers and for the people of both companies.

Things are changing, but we are leading the change, not waiting for it to happen to us. AT&T is a great asset because of your networks, your customer base, your technological capabilities, one of the world's strongest brands and a very talented employee team.

Together we will create the prototype communications company for the 21st century. Now I know that any merger creates uncertainty. It would be naïve to suggest that there will be no change involved as we combine these two great companies. But the promise this transaction holds far surpasses any uncertainty it might create. We're bringing together two companies with complimentary strengths, products, customer bases and we're going to create the premier global provider for a new era of communications.

I want to underscore my feelings towards AT&T. I know AT&T well; I worked there for many years. I have a deep appreciation for AT&T's accomplishments and for what it represents in the history of American business. From that first-hand experience I can tell you that AT&T and SBC have common values focused on service, innovation and reliability. Values that are important to customers. I also understand and value the heritage and strength of the AT&T brand, which is one of the most widely recognized and respected names throughout the world. We'll be announcing our intentions on branding soon, but I can promise you the AT&T name will certainly be a part of our new company's future.

I know how much you like to serve customers and win in the marketplace and that's what really makes this so exciting. We're already hearing from many customers who couldn't be more enthusiastic about the value this combination will bring to them. The combined company will be a stronger, more effective, more responsive and more innovative company. Together we will be the company to beat in the communications industry.

We have much to do in the weeks and months ahead and I look forward to working with you to make it happen.
