SUBJECT: ADC Andrew Integration Bulletin

Introduction

It's been two weeks since our first ADC Andrew Integration Bulletin and, as promised, I would like to provide you with an update on progress being made toward successful close of the proposed combination of ADC and Andrew. Today, I am encouraged to report that integration teams are working toward an effective combination for Day One, which we define as the day the deal between ADC and Andrew closes. As the proposed deal close approaches (anticipated in the September to October timeframe, pending shareowner approval), these teams are driving clarity between both companies to drive aggressive deadlines to create speed to value. Teams, which today include a total of 96 sub-teams, are mobilized to achieve the combination's value and are making steady progress.

Status Report

This section includes updates on events or decisions that have been made since July 19 (ADC Andrew Integration Bulletin #1):

First, I would like to share that we have developed a shareowner website at www.adcandrewmerger.com. This site provides combination-related information needed for our shareowners to make an informed decision. We have also launched a website that integration team members from both ADC and Andrew can use to efficiently maintain their documentation and communicate with others who are directly involved in the integration planning process.

Week of July 24 - 28: Momentum is quickly being built as the ADC Andrew Core Integration Team charters are defined and approved. The goal of chartering is to ensure that each integration team clearly defines and understands its objectives, and that the objectives of all teams will comprehensively and efficiently enable us to plan for a successful integration. Additionally, we are identifying all critical Day One imperatives, as well as defining decision-making processes, so we can accelerate key decisions and recommendations.

July 27 ADC and Andrew Senior Executive Team Review Session takes place. Discussion topics included a status update on ADC Andrew integration planning and core team progress. The executive team reviewed and refined recommendations from the core team pertaining to Day One imperatives and key decision-making processes. The executive team also reconfirmed its commitment in providing all employees with reporting structures on Day One.

Questions

Questions received from employees through the Ask.ADC e-mail box will be shared with you in these bulletins. I encourage you to utilize this avenue to surface any questions you may have or contact a Core Team member or your manager. The integration teams are focused on getting you the answers you are interested in as quickly as is feasible, so take the time to ask us questions.

Question: When will the ADC shareowners vote on the Andrew deal?

Answer: ADC stockowners will vote at a shareowner meeting on a yet to be determined date. Once a date is determined and approved, we will communicate it to you in this bulletin.

Question: How do we plan to integrate the two companies' SAP systems?

Answer: A critical decision like this requires careful study, which is what the I.T. Applications team, one of our many integration teams, is currently working on. This team, which is led by ADC's Helen Ray and Andrew's Jim Stevenson, is responsible for providing an SAP recommendation to the ADC Andrew Senior Executive Team for approval. The recommendation will consider current system functionality and future system capabilities that are needed to support the vision of our combined company.

We're better, Connected!

Currently, team members are considering numerous integration options, some of which may include: (1) creating a new version of the system and migrating data from both companies into it; (2) migrating Andrew's data into ADC's system; or (3) migrating ADC's data into Andrew's system.

In the end, the team is working vigorously to ensure that on Day One, ADC Andrew can operate with no disruption in its networks, telecommunications, and business and engineering applications. Compared against previous business dealings, ADC's and Andrew's SAP systems are fairly similar. Both of us use the same SAP release level, 4.6c, and each system is fairly sophisticated, easing system integration post-close.

What Can You Do?

I highly encourage you to remain focused on our business and flexible in your everyday business activities. I realize change has become a way of life at ADC, driven by our industry and the marketplace which is facing consolidations, technology issues and customer demands. At work, at home and in our world, change and evolution is always constant. Whether welcome or not, it provides us with opportunities to define our jobs, lives and relationships in new and creative ways. Through these bulletins, I would like to provide you with some strategies to help you effectively manage change.

Strategies for Coping with Change

As stated above, change is a natural part of life. We may not have control over every change we experience, but we can find positive ways to face them. Please read some suggestions to help you manage change effectively:

Tell yourself the truth: Regardless of the ADC Andrew combination, change is always present at ADC and at any company that successfully competes in a rapidly changing marketplace.

Reach out to others: Talk to your manager or your H.R. Business Partner with concerns you may have. If you are uncomfortable discussing your concerns with them, feel free to contact LifeWorks (see below).

Stay focused: We must deliver on our commitments to our customer. They expect and demand results.

Be patient: Integration implementation activities will take time and effort on everyone's part.

Let go of the past: ADC must change rapidly if we are to succeed in the rapidly changing marketplace. Respect for the past is fine, but it must not get in the way of changes we need to make today. Flexibility is critical in this time of change.

We're better, Connected!

Closing Remarks

I am extremely pleased that both ADC and Andrew have assigned some very strong leaders to the integration project. It is an absolute pleasure to work with these excellent leaders on this very key effort. I am very confident we can do an outstanding job with the overall integration of these two excellent companies.

For those of you who are directly supporting the integration effort, thanks for all your effort to date. You are definitely making progress. For those of you who are less directly supporting the integration effort, I encourage you to stay focused on your objectives. Nothing is more important than maintaining our focus in fully supporting our customers. We all play an important role in ADC's overall success. Thank you in advance for your continued commitment and support.
