Subject: LabCorp/Covance Weekly Integration Update
Date: 17 February 2015

Dear Colleagues,

We had another great week of activity as we move toward the closing of the merger. Our Day 1 preparations are being finalized, and we are incredibly excited to take this important step with you. As we have said before, we are committed to keeping you informed throughout the integration process. Below, please enjoy this week's update.

Dave King and Joe Herring recently got together in North Carolina to shoot an employee video for Day 1. Collaborating on the video was another opportunity for Dave and Joe to express their shared vision for the new LabCorp and the Covance Drug Development business. The video will be released on Day 1 at the close of the transaction, and we are excited to share it with you!

Day 1 event planning continues to progress smoothly. Covance and LabCorp Clinical Trials/Tandem Labs employees will be invited to a local or virtual Town Hall meeting to be held on Day 1, where they will hear more from our leaders about our newly combined organization, have the chance to ask questions, and celebrate both what we have achieved in reaching Day 1 and the great opportunities ahead of us.

Lync Instant Messaging (IM) connectivity will be available to all employees of the combined Covance Drug Development business, including all current employees of Covance and LabCorp Clinical Trials/Tandem Labs, connecting you to your colleagues throughout the entire organization. This development, which will begin on Day 1, is thanks to the IT Core Integration Team, which has been working extremely hard to ensure a smooth transition for employees and customers. Additional training will be available in the coming weeks for those who would like to take advantage of this communication tool.

Training sessions for client-facing employees will take place this week. If you regularly interact with clients, you should have received a save-the-date calendar invitation last week with several time slots for you to choose from. The schedule for these meetings will accommodate different time zones and business units, and your participation is mandatory if you are in a client-facing role.

These sessions will provide important information to ensure that we reach out to clients with a consistent voice starting on Day 1. The top priorities starting on Day 1 are maintaining the stability of our customer base, growing our core business, and breaking away from the competition. It is critical that our clients continue to experience the highest levels of service delivery and business continuity, and the training will ensure that you have the tools to respond to their initial questions and concerns.

The Covance shareholder vote to approve the proposed merger is scheduled for 8am EST on Wednesday, February 18. We anticipate the closing of the merger will occur the next day. In the meantime, stay tuned for additional updates, as Day 1 is right around the corner. If you have questions, both leading up to and after Day 1, Covance employees should send them to LTQ@covance.com and LabCorp employees should send them to Merger Questions@labcorp.com.

Sincerely,

Steve Anderson, PhD
