MAYOR-ELECT JERRY ABRAMSON STEPS DOWN FROM BROWN-FORMAN BOARD

Louisville, KY, December 20, 2002- Brown-Forman Chairman and CEO Owsley Brown II announced today that Jerry E. Abramson, mayor-elect of the new Louisville Metro Government, has resigned from the company's Board of Directors, effective today.

In making the announcement, Brown said, "Mayor-elect Abramson has been an exceptionally valuable member of our Board for the last four years and while we are sorry to lose him, we're proud that our community has chosen him to be the leader of our new merged city-county government."

Abramson stated, "I have enjoyed immensely serving on the Board of Directors of this fine Louisville-based company, but believe that it would be inappropriate to continue that service when I assume public office."

Abramson, who takes office January 6, was mayor of the former Louisville city government from 1986 to 1999, after which he joined Brown-Forman's Board.

The departure of Abramson reduces the number of Brown-Forman's Directors to eleven from twelve.

Brown-Forman is a diversified producer and marketer of fine quality consumer products, including Jack Daniel's, Canadian Mist, Southern Comfort, Fetzer and Bolla Wines, Korbel California Champagnes, Lenox, Dansk, and Gorham tableware giftware, and Hartmann Luggage.
