Item 8.01 Other Events.

On December 24, 2017, Capital One Financial Corporation (the “Company”) resubmitted its capital plan as required by the Federal Reserve Board (the “Federal Reserve”) for the 2017 Comprehensive Capital Analysis and Review (“CCAR”) process to address certain weaknesses identified in the Company’s capital planning process. In connection with the resubmission, the Company’s Board of Directors (the “Board”) reduced the authorized repurchases of the Company’s common stock to up to $1.0 billion for the remaining 2017 CCAR period, which ends June 30, 2018. In June 2017, the Company announced that the Board had authorized the repurchase of up to $1.85 billion of the Company’s common stock beginning in the third quarter of 2017 through the second quarter of 2018 (the “2017 Repurchase Program”). To date, the Company has repurchased an immaterial amount of its common stock under the 2017 Repurchase Program. If the Federal Reserve objects to the resubmitted capital plan, it may restrict subsequent capital distributions.

The Board’s decision was driven by the estimated near term adverse impact to the Company’s financial position as a result of the anticipated reduction in the carrying value of certain tax assets and additional tax expenses resulting from the Tax Act<sup>1</sup>. The Company currently estimates that the Tax Act will result in an approximately $1.9 billion charge against net income primarily due to the write down of its deferred tax assets as a result of the Tax Act’s reduction in the corporate tax rate from 35% to 21%, a one-time tax on the Company’s unrepatriated foreign earnings, and other anticipated impacts associated with the Tax Act. The actual amount of these adjustments may vary and will be calculated based on year-end tax balances and valuation assessments of the tax assets. In addition, the Tax Act would eliminate the ability of the Company to carryback any net operating losses against prior period taxable income, which impacted the amount of the allowable deferred tax assets included in the Company’s common equity Tier 1 capital in our stress scenario.

The timing and exact amount of any common stock repurchases for the remainder of the 2017 Repurchase Program will depend on various factors, including market conditions, opportunities for growth and the Company’s capital position and amount of retained earnings. The Company’s share repurchase program does not include specific price targets, may be executed through open market purchases or privately negotiated transactions, including utilizing Rule 10b5-1 programs, and may be suspended at any time. The Company expects to maintain its quarterly dividend of $0.40 per share, subject to approval by the Board.
